PRNewswire-FirstCall
BETHESDA, Md.

Lockheed Martin Corporation announced today that it intends to offer up to $850 million of floating rate convertible debentures through an offering to qualified institutional buyers pursuant to Rule 144A under the Securities Act of 1933.

The debentures are expected to have a term of 30 years and would be convertible into shares of Lockheed Martin common stock if certain conditions are met (and the company elects not to settle such conversion with cash), at a price to be determined by negotiations between Lockheed Martin and the initial purchasers of the debentures. The terms of the offering are expected to include an option exercisable by the initial purchasers to purchase up to an additional $150 million in aggregate principal amount of debentures.

This press release does not constitute an offer to sell or the solicitation of an offer to buy securities. The offering is being made within the United States only to qualified institutional buyers. The debentures being offered have not been registered under the Securities Act of 1933 or state securities laws and may not be offered or sold in the United States absent registration or an applicable exemption from the registration requirements.

Headquartered in Bethesda, Md., Lockheed Martin employs about 125,000 people worldwide and is principally engaged in the research, design, development, manufacture and integration of advanced technology systems, products and services.
