SEABROOK, Md.

The Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) has awarded Lockheed Martin the Infrastructure Support Services (ISS) contract. Awarded under the U.S. General Services Administration Millennium Government Wide Acquisition Contract, the contract has a base value of $33 million and a total potential value of $122 million if all program options are exercised over six years. Lockheed Martin will increase performance of services by consolidating and integrating the SEC's IT services.

Lockheed Martin will provide transition services, program management support for Server Services, Managed Network Services, End User Computing, Service Desk and Pre-production services and other infrastructure areas. Services performed will be based on service level agreements designed to fit the requirements of the SEC to include service desk operations, data center support and operations management, technology deployment and support, and technology lab support.

"We are looking forward to serving the Commission with the world class IT support it requires for carrying out a mission so vital to the country and its economy. We commit to applying the knowledge, skill, and performance required to provide the very best IT support possible," said Steve Lubniewski, President of Lockheed Martin's Enterprise Solutions & Services.

Lockheed Martin will perform the work at the SEC Washington, D.C. headquarters and SEC Operations Center in Alexandria, Va., with an additional 11 remote sites being supported from these two locations.

The Securities and Exchange Commission administers and enforces the federal securities laws, which protect investors, ensure equitable markets and promote capital formation.

Lockheed Martin will be supported by teammates EMC, Hopkinton, Mass.; SoftTech Consulting, Inc., Fairfax, Va.; and ForeData Technology, Inc., Great Falls, Va.

Headquartered in Bethesda, Md., Lockheed Martin is a global security company that employs about 140,000 people worldwide and is principally engaged in the research, design, development, manufacture, integration and sustainment of advanced technology systems, products and services. The corporation reported 2007 sales of $41.9 billion.
