

Lockheed Martin CEO Marillyn Hewson Addresses Canadian Aerospace Summit

Aerospace and Defence: A Catalyst for Canada's Global Competitiveness

OTTAWA, Ontario, Nov. 15, 2016 /PRNewswire/ -- Marillyn Hewson, Chairman, President and CEO of Lockheed Martin (NYSE: LMT) and Chairman of the Aerospace Industries Association addressed approximately 800 executives and decision-makers from the aerospace industry as well as government and industry leaders at the Canadian Aerospace Summit here today.

In her remarks, Hewson reaffirmed Lockheed Martin's commitment to Canada's success, and discussed the importance of government and industry working together to ensure Canada remains an innovation leader. She highlighted three actions that government and industry leaders should take to ensure a future filled with innovation:

- Foster an environment of innovative entrepreneurship across the nation;
- Pursue opportunities in emerging markets to promote economic growth; and
- Ensure a pipeline of talent goes into science, technology, engineering and math (STEM) to advance innovation.
