Lockheed Martin Announced As An Official Supporter Of The Invictus Games The Hague 2020

Jonathan Hoyle, chief executive Europe for Lockheed Martin, and Lt. Gen. (ret) Mart de Kruif, Chairman of the Invictus Games The Hague 2020, met in Amsterdam last week to kick off Lockheed Martin's partnership as an Official Supporter of the Games.

Nov. 13, 2019 – Lockheed Martin (NYSE: LMT) is proud to announce it will be an Official Supporter of the Invictus Games The Hague 2020, presented by Jaguar Land Rover. A partner at the Games in Toronto 2017 and Sydney 2018, Lockheed Martin is working to continue its steadfast support for wounded, injured or sick men and women who serve, or served, in the armed forces.

“Support for servicemen and women is in our DNA,” said Jonathan Hoyle, chief executive Europe at Lockheed Martin. “More than 20% of our global workforce are military veterans and Lockheed Martin employees volunteer over 45,000 hours to veterans’ initiatives each year. It is a privilege to partner with the Invictus Games The Hague 2020 and to share in the spirit of the Games.”

The Invictus Games use the power of sport to inspire recovery, support rehabilitation and generate a wider understanding of and respect for those who serve their country, and for their loved ones. The Games in 2020 come at a particularly symbolic time as the world recognizes the 75th anniversary of the end of World War II.

“We are thankful for the dedication that Lockheed Martin brings to celebrating the participants of the Games and honoring their service,” says Gen. (ret) Mart de Kruif, Chairman of the Invictus Games The Hague 2020. “A partner in the greater mission of safety and security across the world, Lockheed Martin’s core values to do what’s right, respect others and perform with excellence are well aligned with the spirit of the Invictus Games.”

The next Invictus Games will be held in The Hague May 9-16, 2020; and will feature 500 competitors and 1,000 Friends & Family from 19 different countries. During the Games, Lockheed Martin will offer attendees the opportunity to visit a full-scale model of the F-35 as well as other activities.
